Santa Rosa Junior College will honor a local educator at this year's Larry Bertolini Day Under the Oaks, to be held on May 1. The honoree will be a member of our local educational and/or human services community who has made significant contributions to multicultural education in Sonoma County.

The selection committee is seeking nominations from educators and other community members for a person who has taken a leadership role in encouraging, supporting, or directly educating students from diverse backgrounds and/or providing multicultural education and/or programs to students in Sonoma County. The nominee should be an educator within the K-College system, a professional within a community-based organization, or a volunteer within either of these areas. Questions regarding these criteria may be directed to Robert Ethington, rethington@santarosa.edu.

The Award will be given during ceremonies at Day Under the Oaks, Sunday, May 1, 2016, on SRJC's Santa Rosa Campus. The nomination deadline is April 11th (see submission information below).
